In the first session, we were asked to select our role model leaders amongst the leaders of world like Mahatma Gandhi, Adolf Hitler, Marc Zukerburg, and Malala Yousufzai. Then the comparison was done as to why we selected one and how the selected leader was different from the others in the list. The session concluded on the three E's that are required to be a leader and various other aspects of leadership were discussed in detail with the importance of setting up a leaders club in the school being emphasized upon.

In the following session, the seventeen sustainable development goals as proposed by UN were discussed and a presentation was prepared by every group on how to achieve these goals and challenges that will come across.

The workshop aimed at training the teachers to be effective facilitators to build a community of ethical, altruistic leaders on the planet who work together to improve the state of the world with the help of the tGELF programme. It helped the teachers to understand the sessions included in the teacher manual better and be the most crucial link to empower the students as leaders at school level.It emphasized upon the fact that how we as a leader in our own ways can make a difference in creating leaders of tomorrow.
