Delhi Public School (DPS), Sector 45, Gurugram, organised Chrysalis-I 2021: Online Edition. Ideated by school director-principal Aditi Misra, Chrysalis is a platform which sparks conversation within the community. This edition was particularly an exciting one as the teachers were given the spotlight to share their stories for the first time.

The theme of the event was, Skills Learnt and Revisited During 2020. It featured eight educators with their vivid stories that carved a silhouette of their experiences of pursuing their passions during the pandemic. They talked about their rekindled hobbies from the past. The anecdotes and nuances of their experiences made their stories come alive in the minds of the listeners. From cooking to stepping into the digital world and becoming tech-savvy, each speaker added something new to the event.

The evening culminated with the address by Misra wherein she lauded the tireless efforts of the young office bearers for organising the event successfully. In her speech, she acknowledged that it was indeed a year of growth and self-reflection and encouraged the audience to embrace the change as she believes that change is constant and inevitable.

Misra said that the past year had brought out the best in all of us and it would continue to if we do not cave under pressure and remain positive in our outlook towards life.

The event was a great success as it was inspiring and motivating for the teachers and the students alike. The audience left the platform with a hope to hear more speakers sharing their visions and experiences in yet another Chrysalis very soon.
