

MIDDLE SCHOOL FUN ACTIVITIES REPORT

What we learn with pleasure we never forget – Alfred Mercier

Learning is important, but that doesn't mean students should not have fun while learning. In fact, doing different activities increases motivation of the students, by helping them relax, share, and enjoy at the same time. Keeping this in mind, the class teachers conducted fun activities for the students in the zero period. These light and engaging activities were the perfect way to welcome students back to school.

In the 'Little Known Facts' activity, students had to introduce themselves with two adjectives starting with the first letter of their names and narrate a humorous incident to their class mates. Students, thoroughly, enjoyed the activity.

The 'What if' activity helped students hone their imagination and speaking skills. The teacher asked them funny, hypothetical 'what if' questions which made them imagine different situations and share their thoughts.

In the activity 'Enact and Guess', students had to enact the names of some famous books using gestures, facial expressions, and visual communication. The names were written on the board. While one student had to enact, the other had to guess. The students learnt to work in collaboration with each other and the activity led to a lot of excitement among children.

With the help of these activities, not only the students developed confidence but were quite motivated to learn, and perform better in class.
