FILMIT is an exciting multi-cultural project, funded by the Helen Hamlyn Trust (United Kingdom) and is a part of Open Futures FILMIT programme. Its objective is to encourage the students to use technology as a powerful medium to preserve the country's heritage.

A two-day movie making workshop, organized by INTACH at INTACH office Lodi Road, New Delhi was conducted on 28th and 29th of July'22. It was attended by students of classes VII and VIII along with their teachers.

Mr. Feisal Alkazi, eminent theatre personality, film director and author of some immensely popular children's books was the resource person of the content workshop, held on the first day in which the themes of this year's films were given to the students and they were trained in content development. This interactive session motivated the students to use their creative skills and inspired them to come up with innovative ideas.

The technical workshop was conducted on the second day by renowned film makers, Mr Ankit Pogula and Ms Anandini Mehra. Few short films were shown during the session to help the children get an insight into the world of film making and become commendable film makers. The students were trained on the technicalities of camera handling, shooting and editing techniques that are required to create an appealing film.

This two-day workshop was an enriching experience for the students and helped them learn about the art of movie-making.
