She extended a warm welcome to the parents and thanked them for their trust and support. She congratulated the students for their resolute and unwavering efforts and achievements. She hoped that they would not get distracted by devices and cultivate the habit of excelling in every walk of life. She also urged parents to revert to old days of enjoying home-made food with the family to help their children overcome the threat of obesity and juvenile diabetes. She counseled parents to foster a healthy parent child relationship, not to give devices to the children as well as teach them to face problems in life with resilience. She motivated students to be avid readers. She thanked the teachers and parents for their constant support in helping the children reach the pinnacle of their achievements.

Taking a quiet walk with Mother Nature nurtures the human mind, body and soul because Mother Earth is not just a platform for human life - It's a living being as well as a life giver. The melodious rendition, 'Jhanvi – a story of Ganga and Bhagirath', by the Middle School choir left the audience mesmerized.
