Delhi Public School, Sector 45, Gurgaon was invited by the British Council, New Delhi, to conduct a workshop on 8th September 23, to showcase the Premier League Primary Stars (PLPS) project to the British Prime Minister Mr Rishi Sunak, his wife Ms. Akshata Murty, and the British High Commissioner to India, Mr. Alex Ellis. The PLPS project which started in 2019 and was revived post covid, is a collaborative project with UK, where students are coached by the best trainers.

Two teachers from DPS Gurgaon Mr. Nariender Tokas (HOD, PE department) and Ms. Nidhi Anand (Primary Teacher) have undergone rigorous training in workshops that have certified them as Champion Leaders. The PLPS program coordinated by the British Council is an endeavour which emphasises the value of collaboration as a 21st century life skill and the importance of staying connected.

The session at the British Council aimed to involve children in the PLPS programme, allowing the esteemed guests to engage with the champion leader trainers and students. Both Mr. Sunak and Ms. Murty, who are in India to participate in the G20 summit, enthusiastically interacted with the students sharing personal stories about the games they played and the Indian food they enjoy, thus creating a memorable experience for the teachers, students and everyone present.
